[Correspondence of the Richmond Dispatch.] AUGUST 9, 1878. The tax collected from the Moffett registers for last month amounted to $1.091.572. of which the tax on alcoholic liquors was $1,009.40, and that on malt liquors $82.174. The amount paid in and reported would, one would think, indicate more than ordinary honesty and promptness on the part of the liquor-dealers; but nevertheless there were ten of them who failed to make a report, and against these Judge Aiken has ordered a rule. The Board of Trustees of the public schools has tixed the salary of the principal for the next session a (a nine-month session) at $75 for the school month; that of the first assistant (a male teacher) at $60; the second (a female) at $40; the third and fourth (females) at $30 each. Crops in Louisa County. [Correspondence of the Richmond Dispatch.]

AUGUST 8, 1878. The wheat crop, which has been gene-miles below the Courthouse, owned by Dr. James G. Boxley. Last year the crops were completely parched up, and the Doctor has been buying corn all the spring on account of the result of last year's drought, instead of selling, as is his usual custom. Among other good crops I noticed were those of C. M. Carpenter and B. F. Vaughan; also, Mr. Duerson (whose full name I have forgotten), a neighbor of Mr. Vaughan's. Mr. Duerson showed us his experiments with several different fertilizers on tobacco, and I could but help noticing that where he used stable- or farm-pen manure the tobacco was much heavier and of a very superior growth to that where fertilizers were used. Here let me state that I have always been in favor of farmers making more manure and paying more attention to green fallow. I regret that, for lack of time, I did not get to see the farm and stock of Mr. F. W. Chiles, the enterprising stock-raiser of Louisa.

Interview with General Early.

HIS VIEWS OF LEE, STONEWALL JACKSON,

GRANT, AND FITZ JOHN PORTER. From the Lawrence American, August 6th.] During a recent trip through Southwestern Virginia, one evening after supper, returning to the station we found a knot of people, mostly passengers on the train, sitting on the veranda, chatting and smoking together with that perfect ease and freedom which is characteristic in that region. Our attention was soon drawn to one of the group, who, although more taciturn than the rest, seemed the centre of attraction—a man past the middle of life, with long, full white heard, slightly stopping.

Alt. M. M. Stevens:

Dear Sir.—I take pleasure in saying that I have used the VEGETINE in my family with good results; and I have known of several cases of remarkable care effected by it. I regard it as a valuable family medicine. Truly yours.

REV. WILLIAM MCDONALD. which is characteristic in that region. Our full white beard, slightly stooping frame, and with a restless black eye, which ever and anon seemed to be looking for something in the far distance. Feeling confident that he was some person of note, we turned to a colo: ed person who stood by and in an aside asked, "Who is that man?" "Dat are Gineral Early, sir," was the reply. Among those sitting near the General were several who appeared to be acquainted with him and who soon engaged him in conversation concerning the war and the merits of the different generals on both sides. Being questioned as to whether or not Stonewall Jackson was a better officer than Lee, he replied that, as commanding generals, they could not be compared. Jackson was no judge of men, and could never pick out good subordinates; his strong points were his promptness to obey any order, however difficult, his great personal brayery, and his exceedingly strict discipline, He never con sidered what obstacles lay between the order from his commanding general and the execution of it, but went straight at the enemy, with perfect assurance of success. Being asked his opinion of the Fitz John Porter-Pope controversy, he replied that he was confident that Porter was right in not attacking when commanded to do so. The order was to attack Hill on his right, which could not be done without first crushing Longstreet, whose line partially overlapped Hill's, and who was further advanced than Hill. This he regarded as consulation lapped Hill's, and who was further advanced than Hill. This he regarded as conclusive evidence that Pope knew nothing of the position of either hne, but was fighting at haphazard. General Lee he regarded as the greatest general on either side. We hoped some one would ask him what he thought of Sheridan, but no one ventured it, remembering, doubtless, the fact of the severe drubbing which General Early received at his hands in the Shenandoah Valley. Being asked his opinion of Grant, he said, "Grant is a great general, but as cold-blooded as ever old Napoleon was." Here the engine-bell rang, announcing the fact that the track bell rang, announcing the fact that the track was clear, and we were soon rattling away

through the Valley, feeling well repaid for our detention by the opportunity of seeing

VEGETINE.

acts as an ALTERATIVE-that is, it increases all the natural secretions of the body; such, for instance, Jonadab of the United States meets in this as the mucous secretion, the gastric juice, the lymphatic juice, etc.; favors their exhalation from the skin, softens those portions of the human tissue causes the absorption of all morbid growths, reduces abnormal thickening in membranes or tissues, and above all, cleanses the blood, drives out all impurities and poisonous taint, and slowly but surely produces an even balance and proportion of all its elements. It works always in conjunction with Nature; and, when the processes of Nature are opposed and retarded, it espouses her cause with more vigor, and seeks to do what she is unable to accomplish. If corruption has found entrance in the blood-as in scrofula, cancer, crysipelas, or other of September. This band has commenced a skin and constitutional diseases-VEGETINE acts as a counter force, celays its development, and finally drives it out through the proper channels of climination. It, as in rheumatic and neuralgic troubles, elected by the Council as magistrate for the there is an excess of fibrin in the life-current, it House by a larger majority than at present. quickly reduces this and puts all the elements in proportionate harmony. For this reason has VEGE-TINE gained the reputation of being the most successful blood-purifier of the age.

The wheat crop, which has been generally threshed and the result known, turned out a fine quantity of straw, but not much over one half a crop of wheat, and that rather induferent. The corn crop promises well, and the tobacco crop can hardly be called a fair one. The dry spell a month or two ago was very detrimental to the crops in the upper part of the county, though for ten or fifteen miles below the Courthouse the season has been very fine. The finest crop of corn and tobacco I noticed was ten miles below the Courthouse, owned by Dr.

Mr. H. R. Stevens:

In 1872 your VEGETINE was recommended to me, and, yielding to the persuasions of a friend, I consented to try it. At the time I was suffering from general debility and nervous prostration, superinduced by overwork and irregular habits. Its wonderful strengthening and curative properties seemed to affect my debilitated system from the first dose; and, under its persistent use. I rapidly recovered, againing more than usual health and good feeding. Since then I have not hesitated to give VEGETINE in unqualified endorsement my being a safe, sure, and powerful agent in promoting health and restoring the wasted system to new life and energy. VEGETINE is the only medicine I use; and as long as I live I never expect to find a better. Yours, truly,

Mr. H. R. Stevens, Boston, Mass.:

Dear Sir.—I feel greatly indebted to your excellent medicine, Vegetine, for what it has done for me. I have been subjected to rheumatism all my life. Was attacked with it three years ago; and suffered terrible pains in my chest, back, and limbs for six or eight months, at which time I commenced using Vegetine on the advice of a friend who had been entirely cared by it. I had scarcely used a half bottle until the pain had left me, and my general health began to improve rapidly under the influence of this great blood-purifier. I had also suffered dreadfully from a masal catarrh for seven or eight years. After taking the first bottle of Vegetine I moliced a change for the better. The constant pain and heaviness that I had over my eyes for years disappeared, and the discharge of mucus from the head ceased. My appetite got better, and strength seemed to come with every dose of medicine. Too much cannot be said in its favor, and I always take pleasure in recommending it to my friends who may be suffering from any disease of the blood; for I feel satisfied, if they try it, they are sure of a cure.
